Masonry Workshop

Craftsmen in the Conservation of Historic Buildings

Our heritage trained masons work in-situ to conserve and repair the fabric of churches, cathedrals and stately homes across the South West and Wales. We also have well-resourced workshops in Shepton Mallet with a large store of natural stone, tile and slates. It means that we can order large quantities of stone to cut to size as required. Our workshop also provides space for our masons to concentrate on restoring pieces off-site and creating new bespoke or decorative items in natural stone.

Flooring, pew renewal and internal refurbishment at Bishopsteighton Church, window dressing at Bramshill House, flooring and joinery at a private estate, and marble floor and fireplace in the award winning restoration of St Giles house.

Sean Clarke, Director of Conservation (shown below centre) is an expert heritage stone mason qualified to MA level and he leads our team of masons specialising in heritage skills stone masonry.
